Dear Mr. Bryant:

It has not yet been settled whether about we shall have a Summer Session in Applied Science for returned men. That will depend largely on the number of those who may arrive home in time to undertake such work. If there were a large number of men we would be in a position to begin their work by the first of April it is quite possible that we may carry on for some months in order to fit them for entering upon the regular work of the next session in October. If it had been possible for him to be here by the middle of January we should have tried to fit him into this year's work, but I am afraid after that he would be at sea in view of the late period in which he could join the classes. I should advise you to have him in the meantime take what classes in England he can, and we shall know in about two months whether or not we are to start a Summer Session here. In that case he could probably get a transfer and arrive home in time to take up any work that we may initiate. The important point for him now is to use his time to the best advantage in England seeing that he cannot get home immediately. I am very glad to know that his arm is so much better. Wishing you the compliments of the season, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
